

NewNet Communication Technologies Announces Reseller Agreement with ENEA to expand its Protocol Software Product Line

NewNet and ENEA are Partnering to Expand Protocol Offerings

June 14, 2010, Trumbull, CT -- NewNet Communication Technologies, a leading provider of SS7 Signaling and Short Message Server solutions for wireless, IP, and wireline networks, has announced it has entered into a reseller agreement with ENEA, a global provider of advanced software protocol solutions. Under the terms of the agreement NewNet will have exclusive distribution rights to ENEA's award winning Enea NetBricks® protocol product line in the Americas region.

Enea's diverse protocol offerings includes a wide range of highly portable telecom protocol stacks for signaling networks, as well as for fax and data processing and are compliant with the latest industry standards. The agreement will provide NewNet with the opportunity to address the Americas market with a vast array of communication protocols and services.

"This agreement between ENEA Netbricks and NewNet is great news for the telecom industry. NewNet with its skilled and experienced team is the perfect value added reseller for Netbricks range of products. And we believe that together we will become the key player of this market" –said Didier Raffeboux General Manager of Netbricks Division.

"The ENEA Netbricks™ protocol product offering is widely recognized in the industry for superior quality and performance," said Ron Pyles, NewNet's President and CEO. "Adding Netbrick's protocol product line will bolster our position as a leader in offering telecom signaling solutions and professional services".
